

RSPCA NSW Annual Report 2014-2015

Letter from the President

For several years, a recurring theme has been present in this report: it's the need to focus on preventing cruelty, thereby reducing the need to respond to it. This is still the case, but our ability to work with the community – to help keep their pets happy and safe in their homes – has been hampered by inadequate resources in our own home, the Sydney Shelter. We have been rebuilding this facility bit by bit over the last five years. And through the generosity of the state government and the continued financial support of you, our wonderful supporters, we're nearly there.

This year, we secured two million dollars from the state government to assist in the build of RSPCA NSW's Education Centre. Once complete, this facility will house our registered training organisation, the RSPCA Academy, which offers vocational training in Animal Studies. The centre will also serve as a hub for school excursions and kids' holiday programs, and for community classes which will educate the public on all aspects of pet wellbeing.

The Education Centre, along with our new, state-of-the-art veterinary hospital, is part of our promise to you, our loyal supporters, and the community of NSW that we will always provide resources designed to educate, inform and assist people with their pets.

Our commitment as a Board is to complete the entire facility by 2017 so that we can focus on our real goal – to prevent cruelty and protect animals in need.

Thank you for your support this year. I am grateful that there are people out there who understand the importance of treating all living creatures with kindness.

Peter Wright
President, RSPCA NSW

Letter from the Chief Executive Officer

Let me start by thanking you for your support of the cause this year. Without our loyal donors, customers and volunteers, RSPCA NSW would not exist. I never take for granted the trust that you have placed in this organisation to be the voice for animals. And this year, more than any other that I can remember, RSPCA NSW has risen to the challenge to help those who cannot help themselves.

This was the year when the Greyhound Industry was brought to task. RSPCA NSW was instrumental in gathering evidence and saving the lives of innocent animals as part of the investigation into live baiting. I was asked to be part of the Special Commission of Inquiry into the Greyhound Racing Industry in NSW. The findings of this inquiry are not yet known, but I am grateful that the RSPCA was included as part of the original panel of experts.

Puppy farming was also in the spotlight this year. I was asked to sit on the Companion Animal Breeding Practices Parliamentary Inquiry. I am hoping that the outcome of this inquiry will be transparent, legally binding regulations that assist in stopping the cruel practice of breeding animals in inhumane conditions.

This year, RSPCA NSW represented the welfare of animals on numerous government taskforces, inquiries and reference groups. Our aim in all cases was, and always will be, to represent the voice of animals and their owners in our community.

I truly believe it is important for RSPCA NSW to be in the same room alongside both governments and industries so that we can represent the needs of animals to decision makers. In this way, we can influence change and help steer a path to a kinder, more humane outcome for all.

Turning the tide on cruelty and neglect

RSPCA NSW is committed to preventing cruelty through community engagement, early intervention and education. In an ideal world, our job would end there, but until all animals are treated with respect, RSPCA shelters and the Inspectorate will continue to rescue, rehabilitate and rehome.

Shelter and rehoming

RSPCA NSW

You give them hope, heal their pain and help save more lives. Thank you for believing that animals matter.

Euthanasia*

Volunteering

*Our goal is to rehome every adoptable animal, no matter how long it takes. We do not turn away any animal in need. Regrettably, under certain circumstances, it is cruel to keep some animals alive, and others cannot be rehomed due to untreatable medical or behavioural issues. We therefore had to euthanise 14,979 animals this year. Unlike previous years, these figures include animals from RSPCA-operated council facilities.
